Dear Rakesh Thoppaen Suresh Babu,

Please accept this letter as an expression of our sincere appreciation for your support of the 50th Georgia Junior Science & Humanities Symposium by serving as a paper reader and evaluator. The University of Georgia has a proud history of serving our state and nation through its teaching, research, and public service programs such as the Symposium. Our volunteer judges have been a critical contribution to the success of this year's Symposium, and we are grateful to you for giving your time, energy, and expertise to the program.

Over the years, GJSHS has been a powerful student motivator for building interest in and enthusiasm for the study of the sciences, technology, engineering and mathematics. It is essential for the well-being of our nation and communities that we maintain a strong career orientation toward the STEM fields in our young people. With your help, the Symposium promotes this concept and encourages the youth of today to make responsible advancements toward discoveries for tomorrow's needs. Your support of the GJSHS event has shown our participants the importance and value of their interest in STEM and validated their belief that they can make a difference.

We are grateful that you recognize the importance of stimulating and encouraging young minds and imaginations. We know you must be extraordinarily busy, and we appreciate that you have graciously volunteered your valuable time and unique expertise to support the development of Georgia's promising young researchers. We will be contacting you again once we begin planning for the 2026 Georgia Junior Science & Humanities Symposium, and we hope you will join us again next year!

Sincerely,

Laura Brewer
